WHAT MAY BE MAILED

Regulations Issued By the Department.

Takes Effect January 1, and Department Wants Postmasters Fully Instructed.

Washington, December 17.—Butter, eggs, lard, fish, fresh meat, foods, vegetables, fruits and other necessities can be sent through the parcels post after January 1, according to regulations made yesterday by Postmaster General Hitchcock. The stipulation in the shipment of such substances is that they be packed so as not to break loose in the mails, and that fresh meat may be shipped only through the first "zone" for each parcel post. Parcels that are perishable must be marked so.

"It also will be possible to ship queen bees, live insects and dried reptiles, seeds, fruits, nursery stock and other plant products may be entitled to mailing privilege under the parcels post.

Other readable articles include candy, yeast cakes, soap, tobacco, pills, tablets, toys and musical instruments. Parcels must be limited to 11 pounds.

Classed as unshippable articles are spirituous, malted, fermented or other intoxicating liquors, every kind of explosive, inflammable materials, poisonous insects, live reptiles, disease germs or scales or materials of whatever kind that may kill. Firearms are also excluded.

The department today is rushing out instructions to about 35,000 offices so that the postmaster will have time to study them before the law goes into effect.

The postmaster general believes that the parcels post will help to solve the cost of the living problem, enabling the farmers to ship stuff to market at a more reasonable rate than by express companies.

Tax Payers Attention.

All taxes not paid by December 31, under the new Statute places a penalty of twelve per cent, and if not paid by that time I will be required to make levy and cause still further expense, all of which must be borne by the tax payer. Please make your arrangements to pay before that date.
